Section 3. Summary of Impact

It is with deep gratitude that EPP is submitting our final report to the Joanna Foundation for the financial support provided to launch programming in the South Carolina MacDougall Correctional Institution.

Over four days, from late October 2024 - January 2025, EPP delivered our 24-hour, 8-module self-awareness training to 19 residents of the MacDougall Correctional Institution. The class was guided by one trained EPP Guide, one EPP Ambassador, and one Apprentice. An EPP Ambassador is someone who met EPP while living on the inside, and stayed connected to the project upon their release. Ambassadors are the heart of our project, and make a profound impact on the lives of incarcerated participants - shining a light of hope on the path of transformation that is available for everyone.

As part of the course, each participant receives a textbook (Wisdom of the Enneagram, Riso & Hudson) and a curated, proprietary EPP workbook. Both are theirs to keep, which is an intentional investment from EPP in a participant's personal and ongoing self-awareness work, and an opportunity for participants to share this transformational work with others.

Despite having clearance from the South Carolina Department of Corrections, EPP experienced many delays in program scheduling and delivery. Finally, after a year of discussions, the course was slated for October 30, 2024 - November 2, 2024. The course was scheduled as a compressed course, which included 4, 6-hour days to cover the 24 hour curriculum. However, the course was again disrupted due to the Governor shutting down programs and issuing a statewide lockdown for all correctional facilities due to the execution of Richard Moore, on November 1, 2024. Our staff was able to deliver two days of programs (October 30, 31) and returned on January 10 - 11, 2025 to complete the course, graduating 19 men.

The Joanna Foundation, as a financial partner in EPP's South Carolina programming, provided the launchpad needed for program delivery, supporting the project with the operating funds to pilot our curriculum in a new facility. The pilot program was successful, and there is an open invitation for EPP's return when sustainable funding is secured.
